

FORMING AN EXECUTABLE PROGRAM

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A linker is described and the method of forming an executable program from object code modules using the linker. The linker uses a linker control language in the form of an ordered sequence of relaxation instructions. The relaxation instructions include a jump relaxation instruction which specifies the instruction count of the relaxation instruction which is subsequently read. In this way, more flexibility can be provided for linkers.

D:\NrPortb\iManage\LAURAT\180234_1.DOC